My app is supposed to be a single page app with three buttons. They don't do anything on their own but on tap they change between content areas. This all works fine on my PC. On my Android tablet I can hit the buttons and they do nothing. On my Windows Phone 8 it works fine. Does anyone know why they are doing nothing or if this is a bug or something I'm doing wrong. A: This is my understanding of single-page navigation in Windows Store apps: Only the first app launch allows a user to have multiple windows. Once the app is launched, any other page navigation is done by navigating to the page directly. So if you navigate to another page in your app, the existing page is not re-rendered, and you can't add any code to the existing pages in the app that respond to taps on the links in the app. Q: How to fill the plot area with 3D scatterplot for two columns in R I would like to fill the area of a plot with a scatter plot, rather than the default outline for the dots. I am working with a dataframe of two column values for x and y. I have tried using the ggplot2 package in R with the following code: ggplot(1:10, 1:10, col = "blue") + geom_point(col = "black", aes(x = x, y = y), size = 2.5) This doesn't fill the whole area. I tried

Insert a different style for a common type of construction. Easily place structural columns, beams and trusses in your drawings for consistent design. (video: 1:15 min.) Easily insert a variable value from your databases. Even if the database source doesn't have a variable type, AutoCAD 2023 will prompt you for a type name. (video: 1:15 min.) Polar Offset: Create more accurate figures to help represent geometry around the poles of a circle. Polar offset applies to polylines, arcs, ellipses, circles, and polygon handles. Polar offset can help simplify long-distance intersections and helps improve the visibility of polylines and arcs near the poles. Polar Offset distance is the distance between the center of the polyline or polygon handle and the polar axis. Polar Offset is often used for arcs and ellipses. Arc or ellipse half-angle is the angle between the center of a polyline or polygon handle and the polar axis. Arc or ellipse half-angle determines the position of the arc or ellipse on the polar axis. Arc or ellipse half-angle can be increased for better visibility or decreased for better accuracy. (For more information on how to use polar offset in your designs, read: AutoCAD 2023 Release Notes and Introducing Polar Offset.) Filter Tools: Improve visibility of geometry and reduce drawing time with the new Filter tool. Filter tools include: Highlight geometry by category: include, exclude, and order, for drawing view, Section, and Hidden objects. (video: 1:26 min.) Filter drawing in the dimension properties of the Layer Menu. (video: 1:26 min.) Filter drawing by color, size, shape, and materials. (video: 1:26 min.) Extrude and Revolve tools: Extrude and Revolve lets you easily define a profile and extrude and revolve an object. Revolve helps you easily create 3D cylinder and cone objects from a circle or other 2D polyline. (video: 1:12 min.) Revolve objects in 3D.
